

Patent Lawyer Richmond

Patent Lawyer Richmond - Our Intellectual Property lawyers understand that for lots of companies their intellectual property is a real valuable asset. Intellectual property is an important component in attracting and retaining market share. It defines your company in the market place, whether by way of trademarks which identify your product, patents which exclude competitors, or copyright that prevents unauthorized copying of your intellectual assets.

We have years of skill in the effective resolution and practical management of intellectual property disputes at all levels of the courts. Our clients consist of various trades, from start-ups to worldwide corporations.

Our firm believes that the primary factor should be the client's objectives and what makes sense from a business standpoint. Not each infringement of intellectual property rights automatically warrants a court action. Intellectual property litigation is costly due to the complexity of detailed analysis of rights and utilizing right professionals. Where infringement disputes are straight-forward and simple, disputes normally can be solved through negotiated agreements with built in deterrence conditions. In conditions where court action is considered necessary, we pursue methods which match a business-oriented approach.

Our office and its lawyers are really skilled and experienced in representing our clients in claims of intellectual property infringement. Our renowned litigators have the knowledge to communicate to the courts the technical issues involved, whether you need defending against allegations of intellectual property infringement, or you are an owner of intellectual property pursuing infringers. We offer legal suggestion and representation in disputes associated to trademarks, copyright, patents, industrial design, trade secrets, domain names, interlocutory injunctions ("emergency" relief from infringement pending trial) and Anton Pillar Orders (seizure orders and civil search).